Lee Rigby to be named on plaque

FUSILIER Lee Rigby will be named on a memorial plaque in the royal borough.

The announcement was made by the council last week following calls for a memorial to the 25-year-old drummer and machine-gunner after his tragic death in Woolwich in 2013.

Councillor Denise Hyland, leader of the Royal Borough of Greenwich, said: "Since the appalling murder of Fusilier Lee Rigby on our streets, the council has been working with his wife Rebecca, his mother Lyn, other family members and local community leaders to reach agreement on a way to commemorate him, in addition to others that have been killed as a result of conflict.

"The council recognises that this is an emotive issue for many people and it has often led to speculation that Rebecca has stood in the way of a memorial for Lee and other fallen soldiers. This is simply not the case.

"The royal borough has, however, had to balance different opinions on how Lee should be commemorated.

"Ever since I became leader of the council, I have ensured an open dialogue with Lee's family. I have taken stock of their views, as well as those of community leaders. As a result I have decided that we will ensure that Lee is named on a memorial plaque, as will be the case for other victims killed in recent conflict.

"This will allow his family to commemorate his life and his connection with Woolwich from where he served his country."

The memorial will be installed following consultation with the organisations and parties involved.

New cinema set to be box office success!

ELTHAM is to get its new cinema complex, which is designed to be a key feature of plans to inject new life into the town.

It will be built on the site of the old Poundland store in the High Street and include a choice of restaurants, all helping to stimulate both the day and night-time economies.

The scheme was agreed by the council's Planning Board on Thursday (September 17). It involves demolishing the council-owned building, which is leased to Poundland, and replacing it with a partly three-storey and partly four-storey building. This will include up to six screens and foyer, two ground floor restaurants, a bar and rooftop space for plant and equipment.

Cllr Danny Thorpe, the council's cabinet member for regeneration and transport, said: "This new cinema will be an important contribution to safeguarding the town centre's vitality and viability. Town centres have been changing since the arrival of internet shopping, and a cinema will bring more people back into the town centre, and their spending will give an important boost to the local economy."

The development supports council plans to improve Eltham High Street with better street lighting, relocated bus stops, wider footways and improved crossing points and cycle lanes.

Royal borough council leader Denise Hyland said: "The provision of a new cinema in the heart of Eltham Town Centre will make a huge contribution towards safeguarding the long term vitality and viability of Eltham, encouraging more people back to the heart of the Town Centre. This scheme will make an important contribution to the local economy and to the borough's cultural life. I am also delighted that this development will bring much-needed jobs to the area for local people."

Thank you to unknown Samaritans

I WAS involved in an accident on August 25 outside the Woolwich Arsenal when I fell into the road. I was left lying in the road with an injured knee and head unable to move before a gentleman and a lady acted with good intentions and stopped the oncoming traffic and helped me up. Together they carried me into the Firepower Museum nearby where staff gave me medical attention before the lady kindly took me to the Queen Elizabeth hospital for further medical in her car. Unfortunately because everything happened in such a quick blur, I was unable to thank the kind residents who came to my aid and I would like to extend my warmest thanks and gratitude to them for their help. This experience shows that there are some really good people in the local community in Woolwich.

No pedestrian lights on busiest road in the borough

AS a resident of Blackheath Hill, I am only too aware of how busy the road can be at all hours of the day. Which is why I'm amazed every time I cross it that there are no pedestrian lights! It's probably the busiest road in the borough, and the crossing is a thoroughfare for people getting from Greenwich to Lewisham. The problem was exemplified recently when the traffic lights themselves went out and pedestrians had no way to know that traffic wasn't going to stop for them - trying, as always, to guess the sequence from looking at cars. With so many schools nearby, and the speeds that some drivers come down the hill from Blackheath, it seems like only a matter of time before a horrific accident takes place. Having a look online, it's clear that people have been complaining about the junction on websites like Fix My Street for years. I've also written to the council so I am looking forward to hearing about what they are going to do to fix the situation.

Cameron Jones,
Greenwich

● A TfL Spokesperson said: "Road safety is a huge priority for TfL. We are aware of concerns about the junction of the A2 Blackheath Road with Greenwich South Street and will be reviewing this location to see whether any pedestrian crossing improvements would be feasible."

SNAP HAPPY:
French squad members sneak a selfie

THE Rugby World Cup got underway last Friday (Sep 18) amid anticipation across the country. Preparations for the tournament took on a decidedly Gallic theme in Greenwich, with the royal borough selected as one of only a handful of prestigious settings in the entire country to welcome the world's best teams to England and Wales.

Cllr Denise Hyland, leader of the royal borough joined guests to officially welcome the full French Rugby team and management at Greenwich's Old Royal Naval College (ORNC) last week (Sep 14). The ORNC was one of just 17 venues across England and Wales to host ceremonies greeting the arrival of teams competing in the Rugby World Cup.

The special occasion saw the French team receive their tournament caps and participation medals, and enjoy the build-up to what promises to be an extremely memorable tournament.

Cllr Hyland told GT: "This was a really exciting event for the royal borough and I was proud and delighted to welcome the French team to Greenwich. It was a real honour that the ORNC was selected alongside other top landmark venues across England and Wales. It is proof once again that the historic and prestigious surrounds of the royal borough are ideal to provide the backdrop for high-profile events."

Borough measures help to improve air quality

by Dick Townsend-Smith

THE royal borough has introduced a range of measures as part of its bid to improve air quality for local people.

As well as being the first London borough to introduce a Low Emission Zone, the council has campaigned to improve local public transport links and river crossings including the DLR and Crossrail.

It also supports a range of low emission initiatives and has established local planning and transport policies designed to reduce road congestion and pollution. For example green roofs on the roofs of new developments and tree planting on highways and in parks.

The royal borough has made significant investment in active travel funding campaigns and initiatives to encourage walking and cycling and reduce car journeys. As part of its cycling strategy, the borough has launched initiatives to improve facilities for cyclists, and support residents to take to two wheels.

This has included improved cycle routes, such as the new 1.6mile traffic-free route between Plumstead and Thamesmead on the Ridgeway, new cycle lanes in Bexley Road and Rochester Way, and junction improvements at the Blackheath Standard. Other initiatives to encourage more people to cycle include schools and adult cycle training, led rides and bike maintenance classes.

The borough held its first Cycling Forum in the town hall last Wednesday to inviting residents to feedback on current initiatives and provide suggestions for future schemes.

Future plans include improving the use of borough foot tunnels and new proposals for the Thames Path in the Charlton/Woolwich riverside area so that cyclists and pedestrians are no longer diverted away from the river.

The council has been monitoring pollution levels at key sites across the borough since 1986 and latest reports show the level of pollutants causing the most concern is falling. But it says work still needs to be done to improve London's air quality.

The report shows the threat from pollution caused by soot coming from diesel vehicles has eased, and the borough meets EU standards. It also shows a continuing fall in the level of harmful nitrogen dioxide.

But, in line with all boroughs bordering central London, most sites at major road junctions do not yet meet targets.

Pollution levels have actually increased on the Blackwall Tunnel approach road at its junction with the Woolwich Road Flyover. This has led councillors to call for more action by the London Mayor to tackle congestion and traffic levels at the tunnel and on the arterial roads bringing traffic into the borough each day.

Cllr Jackie Smith, the council's cabinet member for community safety and environment, said: "Air quality is an issue that rightly concerns our residents – and the council has an important role in monitoring the air that local people breathe."

"We've taken some important steps – such as putting in place the first Low Emission Zone in London, supporting low emission initiatives, and establishing planning and transport policies that encourage clean vehicle technology and sustainable transport. We've also introduced low emission engines in our refuse vehicles as well as zero emission engines in vehicles used by our environmental health team."

Cllr Danny Thorpe, cabinet member for regeneration and transport, added: "Private vehicle journeys play a big part in poor air quality. This is why the council has campaigned for improved public transport such as the DLR extension to Woolwich Arsenal, and the new Crossrail stations at Woolwich and Abbey Wood."

He stressed: "We know that buses are a significant contributor of road-transport based emissions that can contribute to poor air quality, and are working closely with TfL to ensure that bus fleets in the borough are upgraded wherever possible to improve this situation.

"But the council can't act alone, and we want the Mayor for London to listen to us and extend his Ultra Low Emission Zone beyond the central London area so that it covers the whole London region."

Thoroughly modern living

PURPOSE-BUILT:
Cllr Chris Kirby inspects a kitchen at one of the new flats

MORE council homes for older people are nearing completion in Abbey Wood.

The new block, Marshland House, consists of six two-bedroom flats and one one-bed flat and should be ready for occupation in December. It's been built on the site of a former disused garage.

The new development is designed for both able-bodied people and those with disabilities and is part of the council's housing plans for older people which include upgrading sheltered schemes and developing new 'senior living' homes that provide modern, purpose-built accommodation.

The new four-storey building was visited by Cllr Chris Kirby, the borough's cabinet member for housing on Tuesday last week.

Cllr Kirby said: "This new scheme will help provide attractive, modern homes for people over 60, and give some the opportunity to move out of larger council properties, meaning they will save on heating and fuel costs.

"Many people are living in homes that no longer suit their needs. This new development is providing specialist homes that meet the needs of the residents as they change over time. Priority is given to residents who are currently under-occupying, which in turn created an opportunity to free up larger homes for families in need."

Shopkeeper sold illegal bottles of alcohol

THE manager of two Londis stores in Plumstead has been fined a total of £2,300 after he sold bottles of wines and spirits which had fake labels on them, or on which the excise duty had not been paid.

Thirulogachandran Nesan, who runs the stores in Lakedale Road and Plumstead High Street, appeared at Woolwich Crown Court on September 11. He pleaded guilty to offences of having smuggled goods on his premises, and selling alcohol that had fake labels on the bottles making them look like the UK duty had been paid.

A total of 25 bottles of spirits were identified from the shop floor shelves involving five different brands, and another 76 in the stockroom. A second visit by the borough's Trading Standards team, together with the police, led to the seizure of 57 bottles of Italian wine. The court ordered that the alcohol involved in his guilty pleas should be forfeited. The court also ordered him to pay a surcharge of £120.

Cllr Jackie Smith, the council's cabinet member for community safety and environment, said: "Selling illegal alcohol not only damages legitimate businesses, but potentially puts lives at risk as well. Anyone who has information about traders selling suspicious alcohol, or businesses who feel they may have been visited by an illegal supplier, are urged to contact the borough's Trading Standards team on 020 8921 8223."

ROYAL BOROUGH OF
GREENWICH

Council to honour war hero

The royal borough is set to unveil the latest in a series of commemorative stones in honour of servicemen and women who gave their lives whilst serving their country. The next Victoria Cross Commemorative Stone will be laid at Maryon Wilson Park on September 25 in honour of Henry Edward Kenny, who distinguished himself serving in both World Wars.

The ceremony at 11 am in Maryon Park, Charlton, will include the unveiling of the Victoria Cross paving stone and speeches from council leader Denise Hyland and the mayor Norman Adams. Henry Edward Kenny was born in Woolwich in 1888. He served as a Private in the 1st Battalion, Loyal North Lancashire Regiment in 1915 and had been promoted to Sergeant by the end of the First World War. During the Battle of Loos, Henry went out six times to rescue injured men, each time under heavy fire, and was wounded in the process. He also served in the Home Guard during the Second World War. He died peacefully on May 6 1979 in Surrey. The council is honouring the war dead by overseeing the renovation of local war memorials - especially those dedicated to local servicemen who lost their lives during the First World War.

Care for the community

WORKING IN PARTNERSHIP: L-r Cllr Denise Hyland; Dr Nayan Patel, GP Clinical Commissioner, NHS Greenwich CCG; Mrs Dinah Fergusson, widow of Dr Fergusson who one of the wards are named after; Cllr David Gardner; MP Clive Efford; Annabel Burn, Chief Officer, NHS Greenwich CCG; Nicola Theron, Community Health Partnerships Local Area Director

A NEW community hospital was officially opened last week with residents, the council and the health authority celebrating a decade of working together to bring it about.

Representatives from the community, council and the NHS Trust were joined by MP Clive Efford for the official opening of the Eltham Community Hospital last week (Sep 17).

The purpose-built NHS hospital brings together GPs, nurses and social care under one roof. It features two GP practices, Eltham Medical Practice and Eltham Palace Surgery, a range of primary and community care services, 40 intermediate care beds, out-patient consulting rooms and state-of-the-art ultrasound facilities.

Nearly ten years ago, Eltham residents expressed their strong support for a new hospital to be built on the site of the old Eltham & Mottingham Cottage Hospital, just off Eltham High Street.

Royal borough council leader Denise Hyland said: "The involvement of local community groups has helped to ensure that the services on offer are those which are most relevant to the health needs of the local population.

"Our strong partnership is helping to ensure that health services and social care services work more closely together than ever before - something which has been greatly welcomed by local people. This greater integration of services is reflected very positively in the mix of services that are now available at the Eltham Community Hospital."

Eltham MP Clive Efford told GT: "It is a great honour to officially open our new community hospital. I know from speaking to people who have used the facilities how much it is appreciated."

Clinical Chair of the NHS Greenwich Clinical Commissioning Group Dr Ellen Wright said: "With two GP practices, outpatient clinics, physiotherapy, mental health services, ultrasound and blood tests all under one roof, Eltham Community Hospital is truly a beacon for NHS primary care in the modern age."

Benefit cheats taken to court

THREE people living in the borough have been taken to court for benefit fraud.

by Dick Townsend-Smith

Finance worker Hazel Eloni from Charlton pleaded guilty to eight offences involving £5,827 in overpaid housing benefit when she appeared before magistrates at Bexley. It followed an investigation by the council's audit and anti-fraud team. She was sentenced to 24 weeks in prison, suspended for two years. She was also handed a 12-week curfew, which will be monitored by an electronic tag. The money is now being repaid to the council. She was also ordered to pay the royal borough's costs of £140 and a criminal court charge of £180. She has since been sacked from her job with a bank. NHS healthcare assistant Adedewe Folashade, 50, from Plumstead was sentenced to 26 weeks in prison, suspended for two years, and ordered to work 100 hours unpaid community work after admitting defrauding the council of more than £17,000 in housing benefit. Bexley magistrates heard she had failed to declare that she had also taken on several jobs with the NHS over a five-year period. The money is now being repaid to the council, and Folashade was also ordered to pay the council costs of £200 and a victim surcharge of £80. Student Ali Farouq, 42, from Eltham defrauded the council of more than £2,000 in housing benefit. He was ordered to work 100 hours in unpaid community work after he admitted submitting eight benefit application forms without declaring that he was a full-time student and in receipt of a student loan. He told the court at Bexley he had not understood the housing benefit process and thought it was different for full-time students. Magistrates found him guilty and ordered him to pay the council's costs of £500 and a victim surcharge of £60.

Cllr Maureen O'Mara, the council's cabinet member for customer services, said: "These three cases involved the loss of more than £25,000 in benefits that are so desperately needed by the many genuine people living within the borough. As a result of the continuous hard work of the royal borough's internal audit and anti-fraud team, these fraudsters have been caught and each has now got a criminal record, with one having also ended her career in banking. Every penny of the money they defrauded will now have to be repaid."

If you suspect someone of committing fraud against the royal borough, call 0800 169 6975 or email fraud@royalgreenwich.gov.uk. Any information you give will be treated in confidence.

Heritage site upgrade makes it better for visitors on foot

HISTORIC Greenwich town centre is a World Heritage Site and moves are underway to make its roads and pavements safer and better for the millions of people who visit every year, as well as locals.

The council has submitted a bid to Transport for London (TfL) for funds to develop and introduce changes that will dramatically improve the look and feel of the town's streets. They include:

- widening and de-cluttering pavements
- newer and better pedestrian crossing points new streetlights, in line with the site's heritage standards
- a 20mph speed limit through the town centre
- improved bus stops, cycling facilities, and delivery loading and parking facilities.

The plans aim to transform the town centre easing traffic so it works better for pedestrians, cyclists and public transport users.

Overall the aim is to enhance the whole environment through the town centre and to improve air quality. The detailed proposals would be worked up with input from local people and there would be extensive consultation before changes were introduced.

Cllr Danny Thorpe, the council's cabinet member for regeneration and transport, said:

"Greenwich Town Centre is known across the world and we're really proud of it.

It's accepted that the current arrangements for traffic and pedestrians could work better and we hope to bring these plans forward to make this fantastic site even better for residents, businesses and the millions of visitors we see in Greenwich each year.

"This is about giving more priority to people on foot in particular and creating an even more attractive and safer town centre environment. Any changes we do make will reflect the heritage status of the town, and will be specifically and sensitively designed using very high quality materials."

The council expects to hear the results of its bid to TfL in December.

Garden city

GREEN spaces across the royal borough were recognised as some of the very best in the capital at the London in Bloom Awards last week (Sep 16).

The annual competition celebrates the efforts of London's boroughs, communities, businesses and individuals in making the city such a special place to live in, work and visit.

Five local nominations achieved recognition. The Royal Borough of Greenwich achieved silver in the Large City Group B category. Charlton Triangle Homes and Well Hall Pleasaunce were honoured with silver gilts in the 'Urban Community', and 'Small Park of the Year' categories respectively.

There was also success in the 'London in Bloom It's Your Neighbourhood Awards' category, with Friends of the Tarn recognised as 'Thriving,' and Charlton Community Gardens garnished with 'Outstanding' status.

The London in Bloom winners will be presented with their gongs by Greenwich Mayor Cllr Norman Adams at Woolwich Town Hall as part of the Greenwich in Bloom annual awards ceremony next month.

Cllr Jackie Smith, cabinet member for community safety and environment told GT: "Congratulations to our award winners and I am grateful to them for continuing to help keep the 'Green' in Royal Greenwich."

"The council always supports local parks and green spaces as part of our continuing commitment to improve the environment for the benefit of local people."

Town clock will tick again

THE town clock in Eltham is set to start ticking again, after the council agreed to put up the cash to pay for its repair.

The clock on St John the Baptist Church stopped working several months ago, and discussions have been taking place since then about how the repairs could be funded.

Cllr Denise Hyland, leader of the Royal Borough of Greenwich, confirmed this week that the council would pay for the repairs and also the clock's future maintenance. She said: "The clock is a facility for the people of Eltham, rather than simply a church clock, and I am pleased to report that in response to this, and to the local expressions of support, the council will repair the clock and will also ensure that funding is identified for its on-going maintenance for the foreseeable future. We are also in discussion with the church over how best to use the money collected by fundraisers - possibly by providing a more thorough overhaul to the clock.

"There is a high level of interest in, and commitment to, this landmark among the local community. I would like to thank the Rev Jim Bryson from St John the Baptist for all his support. We will continue to liaise closely with the church and with other local organisations as our plans develop."

The Rev Jim Bryson said: "I am glad that the history of the town clock has enabled the community, the council and the church to work together for the benefit of many."

A quiz night is being organised by the White Hart pub in Eltham High Street to raise funds to support the repair fund. Licensee Alex Mayers said: "The clock is an important part of the community, and people want to see it going again."

"We held a quiz night a few weeks ago, and raised £650. We are planning another one because we want to have the clock repaired and build up a fund to keep it maintained. We are also getting raffle prizes donated as well."

The quiz night is on Wednesday, November 18. Tickets cost £10 and include a carvery dinner from 6pm. The quiz begins at 8.30pm. To book call 020 8850 1562.

Thamesmead residents come clean

by Simon Banks

MANY hands make light work. And Thamesmead residents were happy to roll up their sleeves to give their neighbourhood a wash and brush up.

They collected 40 bin bags full of rubbish when they took part in the London Mayor's 'Capital Clean Up' initiative which encourages volunteers to come together and help improve their neighbourhood.

The clean up was organised by Trust Thamesmead, which runs community events in the area on behalf of the Peabody Group, which manages homes in the area.

Stephen Howlett, CEO at Peabody, said: "We all have a part to play in looking after the places we visit and call home. As well as helping to make a place look cleaner and tidier, clean ups also bring members of the community together."

Volunteer Aaron Fuller said: "People are less likely to leave litter in an area that is already clean so I am hoping this will stop people dropping things on the floor."

Royal Park wildlife storyboard

GREEN SCENE: artist Madeleine Smith unveils one of the new, colourful educational boards

IF you don't know your blackbirds from your woodpeckers a new colourful set of information boards could help. Twenty-three specially painted educational boards are bringing a new lease of life to the royal parks including Greenwich Park. Designed and painted by London artist Madeleine Smith, the interpretation panels showcase commonly seen species such as herons and ducks and rarer or nocturnal mini-beasts including bats and hedgehogs. Julia Clark, Head of Ecology at The Royal Parks, said: "It's the vast number and diverse range of wildlife and plant species that make the parks so special, and the wildlife featured on these new boards is just a tiny selection of what we have to offer."

Goodbye lollypops

Parking meter upgrade for Woolwich town centre

NEW pay and display machines have been installed in Woolwich town centre – and the old 'lollypop-style' meters have been scrapped.

It's all part of a council scheme to make parking quicker, easier and more efficient. The new machines, also in all council car parks, accept a wider range of coins and people will also be able to use their mobile phones to pay the charges.

The next phase will see lollypop meters replaced in Greenwich. Everyone will benefit from the upgrade. There will be more street parking capacity because individually-marked bays will no longer be needed – making it easier for more people to park near shops and businesses.

The new machines will be more reliable. It will also be easier for the council staff to be made aware of any problems through software connections, which means they can be sorted out more quickly.

The old meters were removed in Woolwich by trainees on the council's highways improvement HILL scheme, which gives work and training to unemployed young people to repair the borough's minor roads and pavements. Up to 100 local 'B' roads not covered by Transport for London and in greatest need of resurfacing figure in the scheme.

Cllr Danny Thorpe, the council's cabinet member for regeneration and transport, said: "This is good news for residents and people visiting and shopping in our town centres. The new pay and display machines will make it easier for people to park near shops and businesses when visiting the town centres. The increased parking capacity is better for local businesses, especially as many will be gearing up for the Christmas shopping season shortly.

"I am also delighted that the project has enabled local young people on our HILL scheme to gain additional and valuable work experience."

New garden does allot' of good

by Simon Banks

USERS and visitors will be led up the garden path to a beautiful new outdoor space at the Kensing Road respite centre in East Greenwich.

A new multi-function, sensory garden, has been created with a development grant from the London and Quadrant Housing Association which owns the centre. The garden was officially opened at a special launch party attended by the Mayor Cllr Norman Adams.

The centre is managed by Outlook Care which supports vulnerable adults with learning difficulties so their carers can have a break. Stays are arranged through the Royal Greenwich Short Breaks Service.

The aim was to create a stimulating and vibrant garden for guests with learning disabilities who stay at the centre.

Ann Nunn, service manager at Kensing Road said: "The new garden is fantastic; it is a great space that makes the most of the shape of the garden and is both a space where people can come to relax and unwind as well as have fun.

"We are delighted that L&Q have approved the funding for this project which will have such a positive impact, we are especially grateful to our gardeners and Robert Morley of Morley lawns, who donated considerable time, effort and resources to the project."

The outdoor space has been divided into different zones: an interactive zone with sensory equipment including musical chimes, tactile boards and an array of brightly coloured garden ornaments to add dimension and warmth; an allotment/raised garden area which will be a hub for activity and fun when the Short Breaks Service starts to grow some of its own produce.

The growing scheme is allied to the Good Food in Greenwich programme, a partnership led by the council of community groups, care organisations and businesses who are working to promote healthy, affordable and sustainable food in communities across the borough. (Visit www.goodfoodingreenwich.org)

Cllr David Gardner, the royal borough's cabinet member for health and adult social care, was among the guests for the opening event. He said: "The royal borough is committed to offering exciting and diverse opportunities for people with learning disabilities and this new garden is a good illustration of that commitment."

"Outlook have done a great job in creating a delightful outdoor space, using real imagination in a scheme that widens the range of opportunities available through the Royal Greenwich Short Breaks Service."

The Big London ENERGY SWITCH

A scheme to help Londoners get a better deal on their gas and electricity bills

Over 5000 Greenwich residents have registered for the Big London Energy Switch since the scheme began. The results from February 2015 were the best yet – with average savings in Greenwich of over £250 and winning tariffs better than anything available direct from suppliers or via price comparison services.

How does the scheme work?

- The Big London Energy Switch is a collective switching scheme being run by the Royal Borough of Greenwich and a number of other councils in London
- By gathering together a large number of people who want to lower their gas and electricity bills the Big London Energy Switch, using a third party 'switching provider', can encourage energy companies to offer their lowest prices
- Once registration is closed, all the energy companies are invited to offer their best prices to everyone who registered
- You will then receive details of exactly how much money you could potentially save by switching if you accept the offer
- You can choose to accept the offer or not

Sign up online at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/biglondonenergyswitch or call 020 8921 5100 to find out about other ways to register

The deadline for registration is 12th October 2015

Are you paying too much for your gas and electricity?

A POPULAR beauty spot known for being a great outdoors is half way to building a great indoors.

Greenwich Peninsula Ecology Park is home to a range of flora and fauna offering visitors a chance to get close to nature all year round.

Now park managers are well on the way to building a new eco-friendly outdoor classroom where schools, visitors and residents can learn more about local wildlife and pick up new skills for nurturing plant life and local wildlife.

The new classroom would be 100 per cent eco-friendly and will offer hands-on learning to 2,000 children, and training for 40 conservation students and 150 volunteers each year.

The four-acre site includes two lakes, surrounding marshland, a woodland area and a wildflower meadow.

The range of habitats means it's home to many different types of insects and birds. The park is owned by the Land Trust, a national land management charity. Day-to-day it's managed by a team of park wardens and volunteers.

In May a dawn-to-dusk wildlife survey day recorded 33 different bird species and more than 60 land invertebrates thriving in the park.

The site has been open to the public for 13 years and on Mondays and Tuesdays is used for school trips so pupils can explore and experience the different types of habitats and species.

Plans for the new outdoor classroom are well on the way after a range of fundraising activities raised £60,000 in just five months.

It meant the preliminary work could begin and the park is applying for grant funding to meet the overall target of £150,000.

Senior warden Joanne Smith said: "This is a huge achievement for us because we can now put in bids with funding organisations and show that the people and businesses here are very committed to this project. It means that although we need to raise £150,000 in total we are almost halfway there in the process. We doors inside out

Conservation volunteers who help to maintain Greenwich Peninsula Ecology Park were recently awarded a prestigious Green Flag in recognition of the work they do in caring for the park's different habitats. ZACH EMMANUEL learns more about the habitats and wildlife at the park and its plans for the future

CALL OF THE WILD: all ages enjoy the sights and sounds at the ecology park, below, an artist's impression of the proposed outdoor classroom can afford to feel confident about getting our grants but the campaign is by no means over yet. We need all the help and support we can get."

There are also plans to improve the water supply for the park's lakes. It uses a borehole near the O2 but the wardens would like it to supply more water.

Joanne explained: "At the moment we can only get water in the outer lake but we can't get enough water in fast enough. Work has been commissioned for repairs to the pumping system to allow us to get water into the inner lake and to get the recirculation flowing again.

"Because it's a bit ridiculous to pump water all the way to the Ecology Park in terms of money and power- the landowners, the Land Trust, are planning a smaller borehole closer to the park."

She stressed that despite the low water levels, the lakes are "still very healthy and full of life."

To help with the fundraising, the park has been running scores of additional activities alongside its usual programme of events for schools and the public.

Events over the summer months saw wildlife photography workshops and den building. And there was a live animal show with Martin Rapley, 'The Bug Man,' who brought snakes, lizards and more.

Recent events included making wild scrapbooks using different craft techniques and learning about disguise in a particular environment as part of 'Urban Camouflage.'

The forthcoming programme includes a fundraising lantern ghost tour of the park when visitors can delve into the darker side of the World Heritage Site. The 90-minute tour starts at 6.30pm on Friday October 30, suitably close to Halloween, and is a chance to discover a world of haunted alehouses and rum-swiggling pirates. Tickets are £20 for adults (bring up to two children for free) from www.ghost-tours.com or call 020 7127 5213.

New season at Cutty Sark Theatre

A new season of autumn performances in the Cutty Sark's Studio Theatre launches this October including shows from Alistair McGowan

(pictured) Phil Jupitus and many more. The lower hold of the Cutty Sark during the day displays tea chests and other artefacts relating to the ship's extraordinary history but in the evening, the central section is transformed into an eclectic 92-seat studio theatre, providing the perfect platform for cabaret, comedy, music, special lectures and small scale-drama. Following the hugely successful Pre-Edinburgh Comedy Festival this summer, the theatre will once again welcome renowned performers and personalities, whilst also reflecting the remarkable local history of Greenwich for its new season of events. In October, Cutty Sark Studio Theatre will host a series of special performances including stand-up comedy by Phill Jupitus and Alistair McGowan, illustrated and plays such as You can't buy pyramid teabags in Egypt by Jeremy O'Donnell. Nelson – The Sailor's Story by Writer Nicholas Collett performs in The Sailor's Story set amid the horror of the Battle of Trafalgar, while Nick Ross talks about Crime, how to solve it and why almost everything we're told is wrong.

Cutty Sark studio theatre programmer Margie Barbour said: "The studio theatre had a sell-out season for summer and attracted top comedians to its intimate space. This autumn we have a wonderfully eclectic programme of theatre, music, comedy and fascinating talks that will be very popular." Full details at www.rmg.co.uk/cuttrysark/studio-theatre and book online at www.rmg.co.uk/tickets or 020 8312 6608.

THE South East London Green Chain offers local people the chance to take a break and discover the great outdoors on their doorsteps.

The 40-mile network of signposted footpaths links 300 parks and open spaces and takes walkers to beautiful landscapes as well as historical and architectural landmarks.

The linked system of open spaces runs between the River Thames and Crystal Palace and was created in 1977 by the Greater London Council and four London boroughs including the royal borough to protect them from building activity.

Numerous parks and open areas in the royal borough are located on the Green Chain and residents are encouraged to get out and experience these fantastic local green spaces. The splendour of Avery Hill and Maryon Wilson Deer Park and the rich history of Charlton House, Severndroog Castle and Eltham Palace can all be enjoyed on the local section of the Green Chain. You can also watch out for local wildlife at green beautyspots such as Sutcliffe Park, Oxleas Wood and Lesnes Abbey as part of the walks.

'Explore' route guides are available from local libraries and the Tourist Information Centre and the chain has recently launched a new website detailing the different kinds of walks available along with interactive maps, audio guides and a calendar of events.

The Greenwich (Waiting and Loading Restriction) (Amendment No. 4) Order 2015

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council of the Royal Borough of Greenwich (hereinafter referred to as "the Council") proposes to make the above-mentioned Orders under sections 4, 45, 48, 49, 84 and 124 of and Part IV of Schedule 9 to the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, as amended.
2. The general effect of the Orders would be to:
 - (a) shorten by 5 metres a permit holders parking place in Westcombe Hill, the west side, outside No.138 Westcombe Hill; and
 - (b) provide "at any time" waiting restrictions in Westcombe Hill, the west side, for 30 metres outside Nos. 127 to 128 Westcombe Hill.
3. FURTHER NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council proposes, under section 90A of the Highways Act 1980, to construct the type of lay-by road humps known as "speed cushions", one in either carriageway, in each of the following locations in Westcombe Hill: (1) with its centre line 1.6 metres south of the common boundary of Nos. 73 and 75 Westcombe Hill; (2) with its centre line 8.9 metres south of the common boundary of Nos. 97 and 99 Westcombe Hill; (3) with its centre line at the common boundary of Nos. 149 and 151 Westcombe Hill; (4) with its centre line at the common boundary of Nos. 173 and 175 Westcombe Hill and (5) with its centre line at the common boundary of Nos. 195 and 197 Westcombe Hill; and. Each speed cushion would be an elevated section of carriageway with a flat top, 75 millimetres higher at its highest point than the surrounding carriageway, having a width of 1.7 metres and a length of 2.5 metres.

4. A copy of the proposed Orders and other documents, including a map, giving more detailed particulars of the Orders and road humps are available for inspection during normal office hours until the end of six weeks from the date on which the Orders are made or, as the case may be, the Council decides not to make the Orders, at the Directorate of Regeneration, Enterprise and Skills, Strategic Transportation, Royal Borough of Greenwich, The Woolwich Centre, 35 Wellington Street, SE18 6HQ.
5. Further information may be obtained by telephoning Strategic Transportation on 020 8921 5580.
6. Any person who wishes to object to or make other representations about the proposed Orders or road humps should send a statement in writing, specifying the grounds on which any objection is made, to the Royal Borough of Greenwich, PO Box 485, Kemp House, 152-164 City Road, London, EC1N 2BX (quoting reference PCL/TN002/CV/1000002615), to arrive by 13th October 2015.
7. Persons objecting to the proposed Orders should be aware that in view of the Local Government (Access to Information) Act 1985, this Council would be legally obliged to make any comments received in response to this notice, open to public inspection.

2. The general effect of the Order is to authorise the stopping up of:

BIDDING FOR PROPERTIES

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B both in priority date order. Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of three ways

- Text bidding is now available and the number to use is 07786207913. For further information please see page 2, or

TENNIS fans of all ages can serve up their best at a free taster session this Saturday (September 26).

Charlton Lido and Lifestyle Club is hosting the event at Hornfair Park from 2- 4pm. Players can take part in toddler tennis, junior tennis and there are also adult sessions which cater for all levels - all will be run by Lawn Tennis Association qualified coaches.
